COUNTERFEIT DOLLARS.

The Most Dangerous Counterfeit Coin ever Made.

The San Francisco Alta says: A very dangerous and one of the best made counterfeit silver dollars ever put out is now in circulation, and those who handle much of that coin should be on the lookout for it. The coin is extensively circulated in the East, and some specimens have been found here. The counterfeit dollar is composed of antimony, and is so heavily silver-plated that it resists all ordinary acid tests. It weighs 330 grains—82 grains lighter than the genuine coin. It is, however, somewhat thicker than the genuine, as can be readily seen by comparison. The counterfeit has the appearance of having been struck from dies, as the obverse and reverse sides are sharp clear and very distinct. All together the base coin is so very well executed that the ordinary handler is sure to be deceived. A Treasury Department expert pronounced it the most dangerous counterfeit dollar ever made, and he advises all those who handle such coins to turn them up edge-ways and examine carefully the outer edges of all the silver dollars that pass through their hands. By thus comparing, these counterfeiters can be detected after very little practice. The metal of the counterfeit is a little darker than silver, and this peculiarity is easily observed, if looked out for, by any one used to handling silver coins. It will pay every one to critically examine their dollars after this.

Non-Intercourse the Only Way.

Greely Hillborn, the U. S. District Attorney of California, who was here a few days ago, stated that the Restriction Act was absolutely a nullity, as Chinese perjury was always able to beat it. Absolute non-intercourse was the only thing that would solve the question.

FAIR UNDECIDED.

He Handles the Situation with Gloves.

A Post reporter who interviewed Senator Fair gets this important information out of him:

"You say that you are going to visit Nevada, will you be a candidate for re-election to the Senate?"

"I have not expressed myself about that."

"Certainly not, but great interest is taken in your future political movements, and, in fact, the whole politics of Nevada are at a standstill waiting for you to speak. Will you be a candidate?"

"I have not expressed myself about that. That's not my way. I never say I am going to do a thing or not going to do a thing. I wait until I get ready and then I do it."

"Have you arrived at any determination about the matter. I don't ask what it is, but simply if you have made up your mind."

"I don't desire to express myself about that. I don't say what I have made up my mind to do or what I will do."

Senator Fair expressing a willingness to get the current opinion of the Nevada political situation, the reporter explained that the general impression in the sagebrush was, that in case Senator Fair ran, John Mackay and his old partners would use all their influence and spend the needed campaign fund to defeat him; but those men who made politics a study, universally agreed that this was nothing but a rumor set on foot by the friends of Daggett and Stewart to bluff Fair out of the fight by terrifying him with the thought of enormous campaign expenses necessary to fight against such a solid opposition, and that many Senatorial aspirants who knew Fair's strength and saw they had no chance with him in the fight, were interested in driving him out of the contest in this way.

"Yes, yes," said Senator Fair when the matter was so explained to him.

"Do I understand that this is your view of the situation?" asked the reporter.

"Well now, you know, there's all kinds of rumors that I pay no attention to, and I do not express myself on this matter just now. So there's Selby's Smelting Works, is it," continued the Senator looking at a building which his Secretary pointed out.

"Would these rumors of opposition from your old partners have any weight with you, if you thought of being a candidate?"

"It's not my way to talk about such things. I always do what I have to do, and let the others do the talking. You can't tell what rumors they will set about in politics."

"If you were out of the fight who do you think would have the best chance in Nevada?"

"Well now, I don't know. I've not had much chance to know what is going on there. You see, I've stuck to my seat very close since I've been at Washington. You hear a lot of talk on all sides, but what can you tell from that?"

THE EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

A Suggestion Regarding the Musical Concert.

EDITOR DAILY APPEAL—I enclose a circular issued by the Pacific Coast Press Association, announcing its Eight Annual Midsummer Excursion, the details of which I trust you will make known to your readers.

This Association as you know embraces representative newspaper men from about all the important localities on the Coast, many ladies accompanying the excursion party. They have among them much musical talent, both vocal and instrumental, and start out with the intention of having a good time generally and they are reputed to make a success of it.

Now as the Association announces an evening concert by its musical members during their stay among us (which I am informed will be entirely gratuitous on their part) would it not be a graceful and proper act for the good people of Carson to extend them a Reception at our Opera House on the evening of the proposed concert.

Without doubt our local talent would willingly assist in making the evening mutually enjoyable and entertaining.

TROUBLE WITH THE COOK.

Mr. Kaiser's Circus at the Ormsby.

Some weeks ago Mr. Kaiser of the Ormsby went below for a white cook to replace his discharged Chinese cook. After the man had been here about a week he went on a jamboree and Mr. Kaiser was compelled to go into the kitchen with his wife for about a week until the man sobered up. In a few days he was again in the cooler and again Mr. Kaiser was compelled to go into the kitchen.

A few nights ago Mr. Kaiser heard that the cook was on another spree and went to the station house at midnight to see if the man could be bailed out. He was informed that the prisoner was getting to be a chronic and that they had decided to put him at work on the streets. Kaiser was up the next morning at the cooking range and about noon he put his Chinese cook back in the kitchen ordering the second cook to head cook and placing the Chinaman second. The dishwasher immediately struck and Kaiser now washes his own dishes.

Mr. Kaiser says that he made a great effort to keep white help in his hotel, but has, after a struggle of nearly three months been compelled to go back to at least one Chinese cook, as his regular boarders were threatening to leave if they could not have regular meals. He says that he is willing to dispense the Chinaman for the first sober, competent white cook that comes along.

Irish Agitation.

NEW YORK, June 25.—An editorial in the Commercial Bulletin says: In as much as the British Tory journals in London intimated that the Irish agitation for Home Rule in the United States is not in harmony with nor supported by American public opinion, the suggestion is put forward that a most conclusive answer to this assertion would be a mass meeting in New York to sympathize with the Irish cause, composed exclusively of native-born Americans. The proposition finds favor among prominent men, who may well be considered representative Americans. It will take definite shape in the course of a few days, perhaps on the 4th of July. There are enough prominent public men out of politics whose services could be counted upon as speakers, and one of these is Roscoe Conkling. Another important point would be the presence of eminent Protestant clergymen of American birth in order to silence another allegation of the Tory organs that the Irish agitation on this side is countenanced and stimulated chiefly by the Roman Catholic clergy. Rev. Dr. Dix of Trinity Church; Rev. Dr. Morgan of St. Thomas; Rev. Dr. Christy of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; Rev. R. Heber Newton, and Rev. Dr. De Witt Talmage could consent to lend the influence of their presence on such an occasion. Such a movement, if started here, would extend to other cities, and the result would be such an overwhelming expression of native American public sentiment, from one end of the country to the other, as would show the British people that the feigned distinction of the Tory editor between the Irish American and native American public opinion in the United States on this question has no foundation in fact.

Give Them a Send Off.

The Pacific Coast Press Association which will spend a day here the first week in July propose to give the citizens of Carson a free concert at the Opera House.

This is the first time a party of excursionists have ever declined to pay Carson a visit, and the citizens ought to give them a royal reception. These men are representative journalists of California and if they are well entertained will not forget it, and it is fair to assume the impression made upon them by Carson people will result in a good advertisement for this city. The APPEAL suggests that a committee of citizens be appointed to manage the reception and also to see that some of the local musical talent of this city join with them in the concert.

It is a matter which should be attended to at once.
